Release date: March 27th, 2026
Genre: Pop / Dance pop / Electropop
Production: Tomas C.
Creative Direction: Nexia Studio
Choreography: Cristian Gonzalez
For fans of: Dua Lipa, Troye Sivan, Lady Gaga, Harry Styles

Vroom Vroom is a high-energy pop track that uses humor, irony and dancefloor energy to challenge performative masculinity and the exaggerated need some people feel to appear dominant, tough or “macho.” Beneath its playful and catchy surface, the song reflects on how these behaviors can create tension, insecurity and exclusion in everyday spaces. By turning those attitudes into satire, Vroom Vroom invites listeners to question outdated gender roles while celebrating confidence, freedom of expression and not taking yourself too seriously.

Artist Bio

Die Gryn is a queer pop artist building a world where music, movement and visual storytelling exist as one cohesive language.

Blending high-energy dance pop with sharp social commentary, his work explores identity, masculinity and human connection through a lens that is both playful and confrontational. His sound is rhythmic and immediate, while his visuals and performances add depth, tension and narrative.

Following the release of his debut single Fake Love, a track centered on self-worth and emotional clarity, Die Gryn continues to expand his artistic universe with Vroom Vroom, a bold and fast-paced release that turns performative masculinity into satire.

Through choreography, editorial imagery and a narrative-driven music video (to be released in May 15th) set in male-dominated environments Vroom Vroom explores the tension between belonging and authenticity, where desire, identity and performance collide.

With a growing body of work and a clear artistic direction, Die Gryn is positioning himself as a pop artist who creates not only music, but a fully realized visual and emotional experience, one that invites both movement and reflection.
