Artist Bio

Die Gryn is a queer pop artist building a world where music, movement and visual storytelling exist as one cohesive language.

Blending high-energy dance pop with sharp social commentary, his work explores identity, masculinity and human connection through a lens that is both playful and confrontational. His sound is rhythmic and immediate, while his visuals and performances add depth, tension and narrative.

Following the release of his debut single Fake Love, a track centered on self-worth and emotional clarity, Die Gryn continues to expand his artistic universe with Vroom Vroom, a bold and fast-paced release that turns performative masculinity into satire.

Through choreography, editorial imagery and a narrative-driven music video (to be released in late April) set in male-dominated environments Vroom Vroom explores the tension between belonging and authenticity, where desire, identity and performance collide.

With a growing body of work and a clear artistic direction, Die Gryn is positioning himself as a pop artist who creates not only music, but a fully realized visual and emotional experience, one that invites both movement and reflection.
